The Arrest

"So congrats to Crowdstrike for doxing me, they are late for the party, intel421 Plus and a few other companies already doxed me even before the Infragard hack. I want to say thank you, it is time to admit I got defeated and I will retire my Jersey. Yes, this is Luan speaking. I won't run, I'm in Brazil, the same city where I was born. I am a huge valuable target and maybe I will talk soon to whoever is in charge but everyone will know that behind USDoD I'm a human like everyone else, to be honest, I wanted this to happen, I can't live with multiple lives and it is time to take responsibility for every action of mine and pay the price doesn't matter how much it may cost me. This is not my end. Thank you, see you around. Don't worry Brazilian authorities, I'm coming to meet you, I'm not a threat, in fact, I can do much for my country."

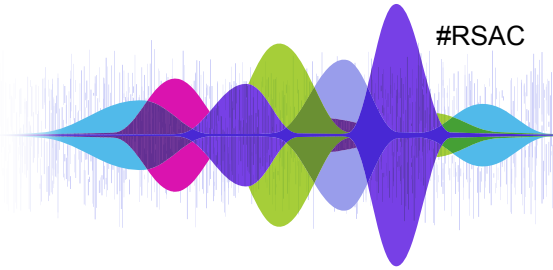
The Lessons

Many Voices.
One Community.

What USDoD Did Wrong?

- When he began his cybercriminal activities, he reused his personal Twitter account, @Luan_BH_.
- He did not clearly distinguish between his real-life identity and his cybercriminal persona.
- He used the same bio on both Twitter and Instagram.
- He continued to post under his personal account.

Lessons Learned



- OPSEC is hard
- Most cybercriminals can be tracked down. They were young and made mistakes.
- Clear your digital footprint today! What information can be found about you on the internet?
- Investigating isn't that difficult; you just need the right methods and a few tools like predictasearch.com and predictagraph.com
